LAWTON.

Lawton, Okla., Sept. 4, 1919.

Dallas Express, Dallas, Texas. Dear Sirs:—I wish to express my sorrow and heartfelt sympathy for you in the tragedy that is reported about Editor W. E. King, the old war horse. It is indeed sad that some of the great leaders of all nations are being shot down by a very insignificant class of common who written oath promised to do their duty work on an at every possible opportunity.

Please send me the Express that tells of this incident, I am a Texan, a first day settler of the second opening. When I lived in Texas I was a subscriber to this great journal, my next request is that you will please send me Mr. H. Starks' Street and number as I wish to write them. I am your most humble servant.

D. W. LOTHLEN,
Lock Box No. 135,
Lawton, Okla.

Stephenville, Texas, Sept. 4, 1919. Dallas, Texas, Pub. Co. 2600 Swiss Avenue, Dallas, Texas.

Gentlemen:—I cannot express my sorrow on learning of the untimely death of my friend, Hon. W. E. King. No man in the work of improving our race held a firmer grip on the affections of the colored people of the country than Hon. W. E. King. His influence was wonderful and his presents were magnetic.

I feel like the colored of America have lost their greatest race man, and that a great educator has fallen from our ranks. The world is far better because our friend, Hon. W. E. King, has lived. His loss will be felt around the world.

I know he was admired and loved by all who knew him through his career. I feel the loss of him keenly than I can express in words. I send my profound sympathy to the staff of The Dallas Express Pub. Co., and to his brother, and mourn with you the loss of our dear friend and editor.

JESSE J. DOUGLASS.

Boley, Okla., Sept. 4, 1919.

To The Dallas Express: The many friends in Oklahoma of Hon. W. E. King were shocked beyond express to receive the sad intelligence of the tragic death of a great race leader who had arisen from the common ranks of the lowly and humble of our race to National prominence a worthy member of the race, which we will feel the loss in counsels as well as in unselfish and loyal sacrificing service.

Editor King and I were boys together in Meridian, Miss. for years we attended the same Sunday school at New Hope Baptist church of that city. We taught school for years in adjacent counties in Mississippi and labored together in Texas for the uplift of a common people whose oppressions always weighed heavily upon our hearts which found us to action at all times in this defense without compromise. I was near Meridian, Miss., when he had to hide in Siwash Creek near Meridian, Miss. for no other reason than he had challenged (the Meridian Mercury) as near as I can remember in an editorial in which it had misrepresented our race. The better Negroes and the better white people were with King and Simmons Jones associated Editor and soon King was permitted to return to his editorial desk. I supported King's first paper, from its first edition at Meridian, (Fair Play) till years after removing to Texas. Later King came to Dallas and associate editor Simmons Jones died. Simon Jones and I taught school five years in the same county (Clark) county seat of Quitman, Miss. I was a citizen of Meridian when W. E. King first came to that city from Macon, Miss. He and his friend E. H. Triplett, formerly principal of Meridian public school and later Alcon A. & M. (Pres.) College at Rodney, Miss., at present Principal of city schools of Memphis, Tenn.

When W. E. King and C. N. Love and President Haynes and et al., were sued for libel in the courts of Brenham, Texas, I closed my school and came to Brenham, Texas, and remained steadfastly by King, Love Haynes and et al., until those who fled the case for libel begged to be permitted to take the same out of court at their cost. So you see we have fought the race's battles together. He is in me I do not falter knowing as I do the hands of oppression to lift from an oppressed race. The poor to be cared for, the wicked to be turned from evil ways and the aged to be supported. My work and King's work were great. I like King will work and labor to the end and see to it that when our mission have ended and we report at the bar of God, we shall receive that blessed welcome. Well done.

C. F. SIMMS, P. M.

Boley, Okla.

Mr. J. R. Jordan, Dallas Express, Dallas, Texas. Dear Sir:—I learn from the daily dispatches of the awfully tragedy of the Hon. W. E. King, which shocked the whole colored population of Temple this morning. We read with regret and our hearts melt with tears for the loss of great race leader at this period of reconstruction. King's place can not be filled at this present time. We mourn his loss and also the fraternal tie throughout the state sustain a great loss. I join in sympathy with the family and friends of the state.

In a house in Grafton street, London, there is a shorthand Bible which was written at least two centuries before Pitman was born. It was written by an apprentice in the day of James II, when to possess a "common" or
"garden" Bible was rather dangerous.

An American lady cherishes a Bible probably as old as the one written in shorthand, which an ancestor
baked in a loaf of bread when a house-to-house search was being made for stray copies of the scriptures. The soldiers came to search the house, but it is not a matter of wonder that they failed to find the book, which now, looking pretty old, is the lady's chief treasure.

WHERE BEDS ARE UNKNOWN

Residents of Merida, Yucatan, Enjoy
Repose in Hammocks Which May Be Slung Anywhere.

In Merida, Yucatan, the majority of the people do not use beds, in fact
very few of them have even seen one.
They sleep in hammocks, which are swung across the rooms at night and during the months of January and February that a light sheet may be required as covering.

These hammocks are usually made by the mother of the family, writes Lilly deG. Osborn, in St. Nicholas, and consist of thread, more or less fine,
woven together on great frames with a kind of shuttle or needle. Some of the designs are wonderfully intricate and the colors beautifully blended. I saw one very large one, made in the colors of the United States flag, which was to be sent up to the United States for a gift. It was certainly a work of art, made of the very finest mercerized thread; and yet the hammock could easily support a weight of 300 pounds.
A servant always brings his or her own hammock, which is very convenient.
